

IEA procedure for endorsement of a certification system

IEA Federated Societies may apply for IEA endorsement of their certification system. A certification system aims, by means of a peer review, to evaluate the professional training and experience of a person doing work in the field of ergonomics who wishes to get national or regional recognition as a professional ergonomist.

Procedure for IEA endorsement

- The IEA Certification Sub-Committee is authorised to process applications from national and regional ergonomics societies for endorsement of systems that have been set up to certify practicing ergonomists (certification systems).
- The IEA will charge $100 for processing the endorsement application. No refund is available for unsuccessful applications.
- The Certification Sub-Committee appoints members of a Review Group who assess the application according to how well the applicant system meets the following criteria.
